Festive Weekend Planned

Action-packed and offering something for everyone best describes the Grand Opening festivities! Entertainment, food, beverages and activities will take place inside the new museum and outside in the amphitheatre and under tents. Three exceptional exhibitions will inaugurate the galleries. Presentations will be held in Heritage Hall. The Theatre will feature footage of the museum's incredible move to its new location and a documentary film about Alphonse Mucha. In the new classroom, children and families will have a chance to discover their inner Mucha, play with motifs found on kroje (costumes) and create their own Czech and Slovak-inspired puppet. And, the entire building will be open for tours — every nook and cranny.

Outdoors, the lawn will be abuzz with a beer garden and food tent where hogs will be slow-roasted on a spit. Soft drinks, water and other snacks will also be available for purchase.

In the outdoor amphitheatre, Czech and Slovak groups from across the United States will demonstrate their talents — instrumental, vocal, dance, puppetry and more. Saturday night, enjoy a concert and spectacular light show as the beer garden and food tents remain open.

Sunday begins with a blessing of the building. The afternoon features two performances of the Czechoslovak-American Marionette Theatre from New York City. Festival fare with pulled pork sandwiches, hot dogs and ice cream will keep everyone energized while kids get their faces painted and meet Papa Balloon.

Keep your eye on www.NCSML.org as more Grand Opening details are revealed.

FROM OUR PRESIDENT

The day is almost here! The day we open the doors to the new National Czech & Slovak Museum & Library. On that day wonders will be revealed — a theatre that seats 50, a program space with room for myriad possibilities, a dedicated classroom where it's ok for kids to make a mess, a library with comfortable chairs that beckon readers, three galleries for exhibitions, a glittering museum store, an outdoor terrace that overlooks the city and, wonder of all wonders, a freight elevator!

Some days it seems like it was only yesterday when the building was flooded to the rafters, on others it seems like we have been climbing up a very long hill for a very long time. But for every bump along the way, there have been many more cheers and bell-ringers. The open-hearted generosity of spirit from people next door and all over the world has been a symphony of ringing bells.

You find out what you're made of when faced with a disaster that changes everything. Czechs and Slovaks have known for a long time that they are made of stern stuff, after facing many disasters during their tumultuous history. The same determination and sensibility that have led to survival and triumph of the Czech and Slovak people have inspired us to do the same.

Having been with him only 10 weeks before, it was especially sad to learn of Vaclav Havel's death in December. Even though his frail condition was apparent, you couldn't help but feel the moral force and inner strength that demanded respect around the globe for a nation emerging from 41 years of Soviet domination. As Paul Wilson said of Havel in a piece for the New York Review of Books, "Havel insisted on the importance of truth, but with a difference. 'Truth and love,' he was fond of saying, 'must prevail over lies and hatred.' ... Truth by itself is not enough: it needs a guarantor, someone to stand behind it. It must be uttered with no thought for gain, that is, in Havel's words, with a love that seeks nothing for itself and everything for others."

That's what it's all been about. Making a space where the truths can be told, where everything has been done for others who will follow us: for children, for adults, for those who know their heritage and for those who have yet to learn.

It's a remarkable journey we have all been on, a true partnership of staff, board of directors, members, friends, donors and Czechs and Slovaks everywhere. We need to celebrate together. Even though many changes will greet you, the Grand Hall with its chandelier will still be the welcoming entry. And we may even give rides on the shiny new freight elevator.

With best regards,

Gail Naughton

From our Board Chair

I'm thrilled to serve as Chairwoman of the National Czech & Slovak Museum & Library during this exciting time in the museum's history. Following the great work of Sue Olson, outgoing board chair, I have the honor of opening the doors of our extraordinary new museum and library on July 14 and 15. We are preparing an exciting array of events for your enjoyment and hope that everyone everywhere will join us for a fun and inspiring weekend of celebration.

Serving as chair is a special privilege for me. My own Barta family history and my husband's maternal Czech heritage have enriched our life and influenced our family. So much so that our son has chosen to live and work in Prague over the past six years.

After the grand opening celebration, the board will continue to work on all fronts as we move ahead to fulfill our new vision and expand our mission delivery, both regionally and nationwide.

So I hope your calendar is now marked and your travel plans confirmed to join us for the Grand Opening of the National Czech & Slovak Museum & Library!

Sincerely,

Lu Barta Barron

Free Admission at Kosek

Admission to the exhibition, Rising Above: the Story of a People and the Flood, is now FREE thanks to the generous sponsorship provided by CRST International. This gift to all visitors continues through Friday, July 13.

"We are grateful for the generosity of Dyan and John Smith and CRST in making the NCSML accessible to everyone. This will help bring new people to the NCSML and build momentum for the opening of the new museum," said Gail Naughton, president/CEO.

Rising Above: the Story of a People and the Flood opened in April of 2010 in the Kosek Building, at 87 Sixteenth Ave. SW. It depicts the story of the Czechs and Slovaks who came to Cedar Rapids, overcoming wave after wave of adversity to leave their homeland. The multi-media exhibition then continues with the story of the epic flood of 2008 and the ongoing recovery efforts in the community.

Bill Severa Visits the Future Severa Board Room

Bill is the grandson of W.F. Severa who was a pharmaceutical businessman in Cedar Rapids, and a very influential member of the Czech community. Bill is very interested in his heritage and has been immeasurably supportive of the museum and library over the years.

Interested in a naming opportunity like the Severa Board Room? Contact Jason Wright, vice president for development at jwright@NCSML.org.

New Street, New Location

Repeat visitors to the expanded National Czech & Slovak Museum & Library will discover that not only has the building been moved 480 feet, but it's also located on a new street. In August of last year, the museum and library sponsored a street naming contest to replace A Street SW between 16th and 15th Avenues SW. Suggestions were submitted online and at the museum store.

More than 100 entries were received and two winners were selected. Julie Cross of Swisher, IA suggested Inspiration Boulevard, and Josh Hlibichuk of Cedar Rapids suggested Inspiration Street. Each winner received a one-year family membership, along with a $100 Monumental Move gift package. So look for the museum and library at 1400 Inspiration Place SW in Cedar Rapids!

Havel Remembered

The NCSML joined the world in December mourning the death of Václav Havel, who, in one of his many appearances as President, helped dedicate the museum on October 17, 1995. His words from that memorable day have been a source of inspiration for us ever since. Here are a few:

"During the 100 years which have passed since Dvorak's visit to Iowa, the people in which the local Czech settlers have their roots have gone a long way as well. It was a journey in time rather than in space. But the goals were the same — freedom, tolerance and prosperity. After decades of oppression and absence of freedom, we have now reached a situation when we, too, can say in our home, 'this is the land.' It seems that our respective pasts have brought us to the same or at least a similar point. We are united by the same ideals. We believe in the same values. And we share the desire to cherish and protect them. Our experience, often a bitter one, has taught us that they cannot be simply taken for granted as something that will just be there forever...."

Opening Exhibits

Stunning Alphonse Mucha Exhibition Launches New Museum

The life and work of world-renowned artist Alphonse Mucha will be the spectacular opening exhibition for the NCSML. Exquisite paintings, jewelry, sculptures and lithographs comprise Alphonse Mucha: Inspirations of Art Nouveau. This must-see exhibition is comprised of more than 230 pieces, including both well-loved and rare pieces from the Mucha Foundation in Prague and in London. Not since 1999 has a Mucha exhibit of this size and caliber appeared in the United States and it is the first of its type to appear in the Midwest region.

"We have been working with the Mucha Foundation for more than a year in order to bring this exquisite exhibit to the U.S. for the opening of our national museum. The lush beauty of art nouveau, its architecture and influence, is recognized by people all over the world," said curator Stefanie Kohn.

The exhibit, Alphonse Mucha: Inspirations of Art Nouveau, is divided into six sections and explores Mucha not just as the father of art nouveau, but also Mucha's Moravian roots, his family, his photography and his devotion to the Slav people. He was born Alphonse Maria Mucha (1860-1939) in Ivančice, Moravia, and studied art in Austria and Germany before moving in 1887 to Paris. Mucha returned to Moravia in 1910, where he dedicated the remainder of his life to the production of the Slav Epic, a series of 20 paintings depicting the history of the Slav people. The exhibition will be on display through Dec. 31, 2012.

Special admission fees: Members free. Adults $12; Seniors $10; Students 13 & above (with I.D.) and active military $5; youngsters 6-12 $3; and 5 and under free. Admission also includes the exhibit Rising Above: the Story of a People and the Flood located in the Kosek building, 87 Sixteenth Ave. SW.

Expanded Museum Store will Feature Authentic Merchandise

Museum Store Manager Douglas Smith just returned from a buying trip to the Czech Republic in search of unique items for the new store. He visited with artists and craftsmen, and toured studios and factories. "I made many new connections for fabulous merchandise visitors won't find anywhere else," Douglas said.

New items at the opening will shine, including distinctive jewelry, beautiful glass vases, bowls, figurines — both contemporary and traditional — a stunning selection of Christmas ornaments, souvenirs, stationery, books and Czech food-related items.

Also for sale is a dazzling collection of Mucha-related merchandise ranging from music boxes and jewelry to post-cards, note-cards and posters. There will be something for all ages and pocketbooks.

In addition, the décor of the store will "wow" visitors. Friendly, helpful staff and volunteers will make this a unique regional gift store.

GRAND OPENING • GRAND DESIGNS

Enduring Textiles

Beautifully-embellished textiles from the NCSML's extensive collection will be featured in the exhibition It All Comes Out in the Wash. Each piece in this exhibit was damaged in the flood of 2008 and painstakingly restored at the Chicago Conservation Center. This unique exhibition will show the beauty of the treasured textiles and the extensive work that has brought them back to their original splendor. About 25 costumes plus many other examples of decorated textiles will be on exhibit once again.

For the Young and Young-Spirited

Engaging, wacky and witty is what visitors will find in Weird & Wonderful: Award-Winning Art for Children's Books. This exhibition features award-winning illustrations from the Biennial of Illustrations Bratislava (BIB). Ranging from whimsical to avant-garde, the 76 artworks are sure to delight all ages.

The BIB is an international competitive exhibition of children's book illustrations which has been held in Bratislava every other year since 1967. Three types of awards are presented: The Grand Prix, the Golden Apple and the BIB Plaque. This exhibit will feature three sets of winners: All award winners from 2011, the most recent year of the BIB; Slovak winners since 1967; and Grand Prix winners since 1967. These talented artists represent more than 15 countries, including Czech Republic, Slovakia, Germany, Japan and Iran.

Additionally, visitors may peruse copies of some of the books that feature the award-winning illustrations. We appreciate the assistance of the Embassy of the Slovak Republic, Washington, DC, in bringing this exhibition to the museum.

Immigrant Home Gets Lifted and Restored

A clear blue sky greeted Expert House Movers on Monday, Nov. 28, when they began the process of placing steel beams under the immigrant home in preparation for the move to its new location. Measuring just 540 square feet, the two-room structure housed five generations of the Sleger family beginning in the 1880s through 1984. On Tuesday, Nov. 29, the 22-ton wood framed house rolled a short distance next to the expanded museum. It was then hoisted in the air via crane and placed onto the new foundation that had been poured during the warmer months.

The house now sits 11 feet higher than before the flood of 2008. Restored plaster, refinished floors, a new window and a refurbished stove were all part of the extensive work undertaken during the cold winter months. Roger Gwinnup, an expert in historic house restoration, uncovered what we believe to be the original paint colors both inside and out. By opening day, the Sleger Home will have an authentic new exterior paint scheme and will be furnished once again to reflect the life of the Slegers, an immigrant family in 1900.

Meet John and Sarah Mucha

Visitors to the museum and library will have a rare and outstanding opportunity to visit with John and Sarah Mucha during the grand opening on Saturday, July 14. The couple will be available to answer questions about the Alphonse Mucha exhibition and to discuss their work in Prague.

John Mucha

John dedicates his time to the Mucha Foundation and is working in Prague to arrange to exhibit Mucha's monumental cycle of paintings, the Slav Epic, and its associated materials, including the Bosnian Pavilion.

Sarah Mucha is British-born. She trained and worked in theatre in London and Dorset for many years. Following the establishment of the Mucha Foundation in 1992, Sarah has worked alongside John promoting the work of Alphonse Mucha through the activities of the Foundation. John and Sarah have three children.

Grandson and Curator Discuss Alphonse Mucha

On Saturday, July 14, at 1 p.m. John Mucha and Curator Tomoko

Sato will discuss Alphonse Mucha, his work and life, in Heritage Hall. Their presentation will be followed by a question and answer session.

Tomoko Sato joined the Mucha Foundation in 2007. Previously she was a curator at the Barbican Art Gallery (Barbican Centre, London), where she curated numerous exhibitions, including the first major retrospective of Alphonse Mucha presented by the Foundation in 1993.

Parade, Perform, be a Part of the Celebration!

On Saturday, July 14, the ribbon-cutting festivities will begin with a Parade of States. Individuals and groups are invited to represent their states in this unique pageant showcasing Czechs and Slovaks and Czech- and Slovak-Americans from all 50 states. Wear your kroj, bring a float, march, dance, perform a routine, or just walk, but most of all, have fun!

Calling all musicians, dancers, puppeteers and folk artists who are keeping Czech and Slovak traditions alive: Show off your talents during the weekend. Be part of a once-in-a-lifetime event. Don't miss the opportunity to be part of your national museum's Grand Opening. Contact Jan Stoffer at 319-362-8500 or Jan@NCSML.org to learn more.

Construction Means More than Bricks and Mortar

President Tom Amosson

After an extensive search process, in February 2010 the NCSML Board of Directors awarded the contract for construction management of the new museum and library to Rinderknecht Associates of Cedar Rapids. Executive Vice President Scott Friauf said, "When word of the Museum project spread, the employees at Rinderknecht Associates knew they wanted to be involved. Many had been personally affected by the flood, while others had great pride in their Czech heritage."

Since the project began, Site Superintendent Al Bries and Project Manager John Baker have worked diligently to ensure outstanding communication and coordination of the numerous subcontractors and the complicated move of the building. Their expertise has kept the project on track and is bringing it to a successful completion on schedule.

"In the 39 years I've been with Rinderknecht, the National Czech & Slovak Museum & Library has been the highest profile project I've ever worked on," said President Tom Amosson. "The move has created interest throughout Iowa, around the county and the world."

It's been important for the city, as well, said Friauf. "The museum has truly become an icon of flood recovery for Cedar Rapids."

Challenge Grant Awarded

On Thursday, November 17, Jason Wright, vice president for development, took a call with a 202 area code. The caller was from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) in Washington, D.C., who informed him that the NEH had awarded a $425,000 challenge grant to the NCSML. The purpose is to provide endowment funds to support education initiatives. "I'm glad I was sitting down. This type of call doesn't come every day," said Jason. "The number of organizations that apply for this NEH money is huge, and the NEH's vetting process is extremely rigorous, so we are tremendously honored by this expression of support for the NCSML's mission. It really gives a national 'seal of approval' to our institution."

The grant award is contingent upon the NCSML raising $1.275 million in endowment funds in the next five years. Jason added, "We applied for this grant in response to the board-approved strategic plan that calls for increasing the endowment five-fold over the next five years. So the plan is in place, and this is the first giant step to achieve our goal."
